Work Starts on Addition To Main Office Building To House IBM Equipment

With J. J. P. Oduber handling the pavement buster, ground was broken this month for the addition to the Main Office Building that will house the Company's IBM equipment. Located at the southwest corner of the Main Building, the addition will provide space for the present International Business Machines, as well as for the considerable amount of new equipment that the Company has on order.

The addition will be constructed of reinforced concrete framing, having the same general appearance as the present structure. In size it will have approximately one-sixth the floor space of the present Main Building.

The Company has on order approximately 60 per cent more IBM equipment than it presently has, and it is planned to start operation in the new addition by the first of the year. Main purpose of the new equipment is to provide more efficient statistical and accounting methods of the Company's increased operations. One of the main projects of the increased equipment will be the inauguration of a cost control system, in which the maintenance cost on various units will be furnished to the foreman and the Cost Control Committee. Other operations will include cost analysis, statistical work for estimating purposes, job order work, and other work of an accounting nature.

In charge of the IBM equipment will be Mr. Oduber, head of the Tabulating and Statistical Division of the Accounting Department.

Ten of the men were honored in a special meeting at the Executive Office September 15. (One had already left for his home in St. Martin.) Taking part in the ceremony were directors, department heads, and supervisors of the men. On behalf of Management, O. Mingus, acting general manager, thanked the men for their long periods of service, and wished them health and happiness in the years to come.

Each of the men spoke briefly, expressing pleasure with the fair treatment that has recognized their faithful service, now and in the past.

Most of the men had been with Lago since its earliest days in Aruba. The oldest, 77, is Simon Wernet of Receiving & Shipping, with 20 years of service in that department. Albert Chittick, 66, completed 16 years of service in the Shipyard. Johannes Feliciano, 69, had 14 years with the Company; he started in the Labor Department, and had been in the Engineering Department since 1936. Benedito Geerman, 66, had 23 years service, first with the Shipyard and later with the Carpenter Department. Richard Brown, 68, was with the Company for 17 years; first a boilermaker, he transferred to the machinists in 1939. Sinforoso Maduro, 69, had 23 years service on the wharves. Juan Kelly, 65, had 14 years service; his time was divided between Labor Department, Personnel, and Stewards Department. Johannes Thiel, 65, was with the Shipyard for 14 years. Karel Ponson, 72, was a carpenter with the Shipyard for 20 years. Rudolf Croes, 70, had 21 years of service in the Pipe Department. Leopold Dean, 66, was with the Company from February 1930 to May 1931, and had continuous service in the Instrument Department since 1939.

Field Next to Sport Park Set for Athletic Events

Appropriate ceremonies were planned to commemorate the official opening of the field. Main purpose of the new field is to make it possible to run two tournaments at a time at the Sport Park.

As Company officials and construction supervisors look on, J. J. P. Oduber officially breaks ground for the addition to the Main Office Building that will house the IBM equipment. From left to right are O. M. Lasser, TSD coordinator; George Delatash and Hugo Swenson, vice-president and general superintendent respectively of the Gill-Delatash Company; Mr. Oduber, head of the Tabulating and Statistical Division which handles IBM equipment; J. ## Swimming Has Its Safety Rules

Swimming is fine exercise, but only for those in physical condition to do it without harm. As in any other activity there are certain simple safety rules which should be followed by all swimmers:

Wait for a time after meals before swimming; a two-hour wait is recommended.

Never dive into strange water. Know depth and bottom are safe.

Never swim alone.

Watch for dangerous undertows and big waves in large bodies of water.

Don't swim beyond your strength. Remember, it's just as far back to the beach as it is away from it.

Never call for help in the water if you don't need it.

Learn how to apply artificial respiration.

F. E. Griffin Attends Harvard Business Course

Process Superintendent F. E. Griffin left for the States last month to attend a 13-week course in executive training at the Harvard Business School. The course is a phase in the Company's policy of developing members of its management group along broad, progressive lines, as well as in line with its policy of developing its leaders from within the organization.

Students in the course include executives from various companies all over the Americas'. They attend class from 8:30 in the morning until 5 in the afternoon. The men live in dormitories with other members of the class, thus making it possible for them to share the benefits of their varying backgrounds.

Rather than employ outsiders for executive positions, it is Jersey Standard's policy to have top management consist of men who have come up through the organization, broadening their talents from the specific job in which they started to more general abilities. Because supervisors are often restricted to the steady, exacting requirements of their particular job, their vision is confined to that one field. This executive training course at Harvard is designed to give selected men an opportunity for further development.

Mr. Griffin came to Lago in 1929 as an oil inspector in the Process Lab. He later became a stillman, general foreman in Process Cracking, general foreman in Light Oils Finishing, assistant division superintendent, and then division superintendent in L.O.F. He became process superintendent in 1946.

Curaçao to Get Luxury Hotel

With preparation of the site already in progress, construction of Curaçao's new luxury seaside hotel is scheduled to begin in December. The hotel will be seven stories high, and will have 63 bedrooms. Most of the hotel's public rooms, as well as some of the bedrooms, will have air conditioning. The plans also call for the construction of a casino, tennis courts, and a swimming pool.

The Government is preparing the site, which will be given to a private company on a long-term lease.

IBM Operator's Course Gets Under Way Here

The Company's first IBM operator's training course got under way this week when ten employees began their period of training. Beginning on September 20, the program is scheduled to last until the first of the year.

Purpose of the course is to train new operators to use all the different types of International Business Machines in use here, as well as the considerable amount of new IBM equipment which the Company has ordered. Men finishing the course will also supplement the present force of operators.

The program of instruction will consist of classroom work, actual instruction on the IBM machines, and practical on-the-job training. Wherever possible this will be supplemented by training films and other visual aids.

For the present the program will consist of two hours instruction a day during working hours. The remainder of the day will be devoted to on-the-job training. Later, as the members of the class begin to use the machines, their training will be held after working hours so as not to interfere with the department's normal operations.

J. J. P. Oduber and R. F. Croes, of the Tabulating and Statistical Division, are in charge of the training.

Charity Lottery to Give Ten Trips to Holland

Want to see the old-world town of Volendam, where the fisher-folk still dress in traditional costumes? Would you like to see Amsterdam, Delft, and The Hague?

A lottery for which tickets are now being sold gives the opportunity and at the same time supports a worthy cause. Object of the lottery is to collect money for rebuilding the Red Cross Hospital at The Hague. The ten principal winners will receive round-trip passage to Holland by plane, with ten days in Holland. The trip can be made any time up to September 1949. Extra prizes to be drawn for are 991 dolls in national costumes.

The tickets are selling for Fls. 2.50 (we bought ours from a policeman), and 20,000 have been printed. The drawing will take place on December 1, or earlier if the ticket sale is completed before that date.

Creole Building Pipeline Between Maracaibo and Amuay

One of the world's biggest and most up-to-date pipelines is being constructed by the Creole Petroleum Corporation in Venezuela at a cost of approximately $30,000,000.

The pipeline, with diameters varying from 24 to 26 inches, will move crude oil from Creole's tank farm at Ulé on the eastern shores of Lake Maracaibo to the Company's new refinery at Amuay Bay, a distance of 153 miles.

Started May 1, 1947, the Ulé-Amuay pipeline is expected to be completed by December 1, 1948. At that time Creole engineers plan to start pumping oil through the line at the rate of 200,000 barrels daily. By the end of the year they intend to step the line up to its capacity flow of between 300,000 and 325,000 barrels daily.

The Amuay refinery will process up to 60,000 barrels of the Maracaibo crude daily into petroleum products. The remainder will be piped into storage tanks from which it will later be shipped aboard ocean tankers for delivery to foreign markets.

Lago's Former Marine Manager Named to Standard-Vacuum Job

His most recent assignment was in London, as assistant general manager of Esso Transportation Company, a Jersey Standard affiliate. In his new position he will assist W. F. Dunning in handling the owned and chartered tankers which fly the "Stanvac" flag throughout the Far East.

Mr. Howard came to Lago in 1942 as assistant marine manger. He later became marine manger, leaving here in the early part of 1946.

Esso Adapts Wartime Fuel As an Industrial Product

Application of thickened fuel — a wartime development that provided a more effective fuel for flame throwers and incendiary bombs — as an industrial product that will aid power generation was reported recently by the Esso Standard Oil Company.

The product is a fuel igniter made of thickened Diesel oil that will fire stoker-fed industrial boilers to full operating steam pressure in 30 minutes compared with eight hours usually required by wood and local kindling. Reduction of the time required for a full head of steam eliminates the need for stand-by emergency fires, the company pointed out, and effects substantial savings in coal consumption.

The fuel igniter has a semi-fluid, jelly-like consistency and can be applied in nests along the boiler grate well in advance of use. It clings to the coal, burns slowly, and with sufficient intensity to fire the coal. A paper torch can be used to ignite the fuel.

On September 12 Caribe edged out Los Tigres, 1—0, and the Aruba Juniors forfeited to the Dodgers.

Who is this man? If you're like several dozen other Lago employees, you've seen him around, and even have a vague but incorrect idea where he works. The picture was taken at the Sport Park while he was watching the Queen's Birthday events. In an effort to identify him, the picture has been shown to practically every Lago employee but the man himself. One said he worked at the Colony Commissary. No one there recognized him, but someone said he worked at the Plant Commissary. Not so, they said there, but didn't he work at the Dry Dock? And the endless chain continued, with several dozen employees eventually seeing the picture, but with none able to identify him. Now the entire matter has pyramided into the moment's biggest mystery. Who is the man? What's his daughter's name? Where does he work? Will Dick Tracy be able to outwit Ruthless Robin? Anyone with the answer is asked to notify the Esso News office, phone 523. The first person to send in the correct answer will receive a free copy of last Christmas' edition of the Aruba Esso News.

On September 3, the day before Francis Jeffrey married Emily Richards at the Catholic Church in Oranjestad, the groom's fellow workers at the Golf Club presented him with a wedding gift. Above, N. L. Holland (right) makes the presentation on behalf of the other employees.

The structure going up above will be Aruba's first three story building when it's completed. It's located on San Nicolas' main street, and is being built for B. De Marchena.

To celebrate Brigitte R. Hodge's wedding to Jose S. Trappenberg, of the Personnel Department, friends of the bride in the Utilities Division office presented a gift to her. Frank R. West is shown making the presentation. The couple were married on August 25 at St. Theresa's Church, and went to Caracas and Curaçao on their honeymoon.

The Trinidad Band, shown above, was the winner of the first prize Viana Cup at the Falcon Club Carnival at the Swingsters Square Garden on August 31 and September 1, as well as winner of the Fis. 300 top prize in the Oranjestad Competition the same week. The oldest employee in the Instrument Department got a big send-off this month when he left the Company's service. He was Leopold Dean, one of the Lago oldtimers who retired under the Special Plan for overage employees. ### Over 300 Children Enjoy Falcon's Kids Carnival

Dances, parades, carnivals, athletic events, and practically every other form of entertainment commemorated the fiftieth anniversary of the reign of Queen Wilhelmina. For over 300 children, though, probably the top event in the week-long celebration was the children's carnival put on by the Falcon Club at the Swingsters Square Garden.

Held August 30, the carnival attracted children from all over San Nicolas. With over 50 of them entering the costume contests, the judges awarded prizes to 12 who were judged the best. Judges of the competition were Mesdames Assing and Tullock, and Miss La Tique.

Free drinks and ice cream were provided for the children. The drinks were furnished by the Viana Bottling Company, and the ice cream by Mr. Baynes, proprietor of the Premier Saloon.

One of the main features of the entertainment offered was the showing of three comedy reels by Capt. W. E. Porter, of the Marine Department.

Prizes for the contest were donated by Pearl of the Orient, Maria Pinkus, Aruba Post, George Rombley, A. Dickinson, C. C. Charles, S. Flocker, B. Marcellin, J. L. Nicholson, and the Aruba Trading Company.
